Taylor completes clinic

An alternative health clinic in the middle of Bath has been completed by architect Piers Taylor and his former firm Mitchell Taylor Workshop.

Taylor worked for five years on the scheme (pictured), which includes a martial arts area and two houses. He said the 600sq m project was the "most fulfilling project I've ever worked on".

He added: "We've crammed as much on the site as possible to the point where it bulges over the edges, necessitating air space agreements with neighbours."

In January Taylor quit the firm he co-founded six years ago to set up a new practice called Invisible Studio.
